til Sunday afternoon, when he was charged after being implicated in the crimes by Nicolaon, who was ap-prehended in Texas.

During the hearing Corkern testified that he had been drinking and 'doing drugs' before the shooting.

He said he took three valuums on the way to a house trailer to call the sheriff's office and that during the next few days he took more of the 23 valiums he had hidden in his pants. He did not remember, he said, being advised of his rights or signing the waivers.

And, he said, on Sunday morning when officers took him to the sheriff's department, "Naylor was walking back and forth across the floor and said, 'If you don't tell us what happened and cooperate, I'm going to bust your head with this ashtray,"

All four officers, on being recalled to the witness stand, testified that Corkern showed no signs of being under the influence of alcohol or drugs when he gave his statements.

There were, they said, no threats, promises or coercion in connection with their questioning of Corkern.

Officials of the Mississippi Associa-tion of Educators (MAE), the state's largest teacher organization met Tues day with Governor Bill Allain fourge him to call a special session of the Mississippi legislature this month. Barbara Hogan, president of the 13,000 member MAE said of the meeting with Governor Allains. We were encouraged by the attitude of the ly implement the Education regions Act of 1982 and provide for desparately needed teacher salary increases." The Méeting by MAE officials with Governor Allain follows contacts with House and Senate leaders to encourage their support for additional revenu emasures to fund public education in the state.

"The differences of opinion on what tax measures are needed seems to have narrowed. MAE believes that a special session now can be productive in get-ting legislation passed that will ade-quately fund the education reforms begun in 1982," commented MAE Executive Director Tony Rollins.

The 1984 regular session of the Mississippi Legislature adjourned in May without reaching agreement on any new tax measures.
A half-cent sales tax passed as part of the Education Reform Act of 1982 will expire on July 1 if action is not taken by the legislature to extend the tax.

"Without at least the extension of the ales tax, the full implementation of the Education Reform Act will be in jeopardy. Unless other revenue measures are adopted to provide salary improvements for teachers, the state can expect to suffer a "brain drain" as many of our most qualified teachers leave to go to neighboring states where hey can expect to make from $2,000 to $5,000 more then they presently are ear-ning in Mississippi," continued Rollins. Teachers in Alabama will go back to the classroom this fall with a 15 percent salary increase while Mississippi educators will not have received any increase from the state.

"MAE proposed a plan to the legislature that would bring Mississippi eacher salaries up to the Southeastern states' average over the next four

June is proclaimed 'Hire a Vet Month'

Governor Bill Allain has proclaimed June as "Hire a Yet Month" in Mississippi in recognition of the valuable contributions made by

In his proclamation Allain urged all Mississippi employers 'to give special consideration to the skills and qualifications of veterans and to intensify their efforts to help veterans find suitable jobs and training opportunities in Mississippi, especially through the Emergency Veterans Job Training Pro-

The Emergency Veterans Job Train-ing Program, designed to help both the employer and the veteran, provides that the federal government will reimburse employers for up to one-half of the starting wage for training or retraining veterans of the Vietnam-era or the Korean Conflict, up to a maximum of $10,000 per veteran.

An employer who wishes to par-ticipate in the program certifies his intention to employ an approved veteran on a permanent basis after training is completed.

The employer must also certify that wages and benefits paid to the veteran will be comparable to those normally paid to employees in training and that no current employees will be displaced. The training program, generally designed for a period of no less than six months, must offer training in an occupation in a growth industry or an occupation requiring new technical skills, or an occupation for which demand for labor exceeds the supply. Training cannot be for jobs which are seasonal or temporary, have incomes paid by commissions, involve political or religious activity or are with the federal government.

Employers who need more information about the Emergency Veterans Job Training Act or veterans in need of training or retraining should contact their local Mississippi State Employment Service (Job Service) office.
